GOVERNMENT OF INDIA
MINISTRY OF
INFORMATION & BROADCASTING

New Delhi, November 12, 1956

My dear Rao

The Government of India have produced a full-length documentary film on Buddhism in connection with the 2500th Buddha Jayanti Celebrations The film is based entirely on monuments, sculptures and paintings It begins with the state of affairs in India when Siddhartha was born, traces the life of Siddhartha and his enlightenment, gives the salient features of the teachings of the Buddha and shows how Buddhism spread in India and abroad and how gradually the concepts which the Buddha propagated have become an integral part of the Indian spiritual tradition The entire story is related, as it were, in the words of various persons associated with the Buddha and the main emphasis is on the values taught by the Buddha

This is purely an educational film with a message calculated to propagate moral values It differs from the documentaries and other short educational films only in its length The distribution of the film in cinema theatres in India will be done through commercial channels This is a very difficult film to distribute, since it does not have the ordinary elements of popular entertainment It is, however, of great importance that the message of the film should reach the largest number of people possible through the cinemas The Government of India feel that, having regard both to the contents of the film and the difficulty of distribution, the performances in which the film is shown in cinemas should be exempted from Entertainment Tax The Government of India would be grateful if the exemption from Entertainment Tax could be granted before the 24th November, when the film would be released

We should like to have a line in reply indicating the action taken on our request, so that we could ask the distributors to make corresponding arrangements with theatres

Yours Sincerely

(P M Lad)

Chief Secretary,
Govt of Mysore,
